Dear Secretary Dortch,

I am writing to you today as a member of our conservation committee, on behalf of the Napa-Solano Audubon Society (NSAS) 686 members on the impact of bird kills by communication towers.

We urge the Federal Communications Commission to take expeditious action to address the high number of migratory bird kills that unnecessarily occur at communications towers across the country each year. Our members are deeply concerned about the lack of responsiveness that the FCC has shown to recent court rulings. Solutions to reducing the number of bird kills at communications towers already exist. The US Fish and Wildlife Service (USFWS) issued recommendations in light of the matter regarding tower lighting, location, height, and support system, which the U.S. Forest Service and U.S. Coast Guard have already voluntarily implemented. We are asking that the FCC amend its rules, comprehensively evaluate the impact of communications towers on birds, and consult with the USFWS.

You should know that over one-third of all avian species found within the United States are fatally affected by communication towers, including many that are of deep concern to our members. The vast majority of bird mortality occurs during fall and spring when night-migrating birds are attracted in large flocks to the aviation safety lights on towers. The lights, especially red solid-state or slow pulsing lights, interfere with the birds' celestial navigation cues, particularly during poor visibility conditions such as rain and fog. Confused, the birds fly around the towers repeatedly, crashing into one another, the tower, its guy wires, or the ground.

On behalf of our chapter, I urge you to take action to address this issue as soon as possible. We believe that the FCC should consider the location, height, lighting, and guying of their communication towers with respect to the potential impacts on migratory birds. Please issue new rules to protect our nation's wildlife in compliance with the National Environmental Policy Act, the Endangered Species Act, and the Migratory Bird Treaty Act.

Sincerely,

Robin Leong
Member of the NSAS conservation committee
